ENGAGING YOUR COMMUNITY

Summary
This fact sheet discusses what community participation is, what the common issues are, and how to improve participation.

Keywords: community engagement, collecting data, Elders / knowledge keepers, youth, planning team

What is the Purpose of Community Participation?
Community participation should get your community involved in the planning process. This ensures that development aligns with community goals. Input from a wide range of community members is important to make sure everyone has a chance to have their voice heard. Community participation provides the community opportunities to engage in the planning process.

What is Community Participation?
Before figuring out how to improve community participation, it is important to understand the definition and different forms. The International Association for Public Participation has adapted five stages of participation in a spectrum: inform, consult, involve, collaborate, and empower (Figure 1). The first stage, inform, has the least amount of participation. As a planning group, it is your responsibility to provide information to the public about what the problem is, and what options/solutions are being considered, and who to contact for more information. At the other end of the spectrum, collaborate and empower, the planning group works closely with the community and other involved groups to collectively make decisions. For more information, see the link in the Further Information section titled “International Association for Public Participation (IAP2) – Spectrum”.

What are some Common Issues?
To understand how to improve public participation, it is important to understand common issues. There are a number of small issues that can be challenging in the real world. First Nations often find engaging off reserve members, engaging the youth, and organizing effective on reserve participation difficult. While these issues may seem like a mountain to overcome, know that low levels of community participation is common many First Nation and non-First Nation planning efforts. There are plenty of opportunities and methods to boost community participation.

---

Figure 1 | IAP2 Spectrum of Public Participation
How to Improve Community Participation Attendance and Interaction

This fact sheet discusses how to involve people across long distances and how to prepare for in-person community participation, but does not discuss how to conduct community engagement. Below is a guide to improve attendance and interaction in community participation.

Who is Involved?

There are two key groups involved, internal and external. Your internal group lead and organize the planning process (see Establishing a Planning Team for more details). This includes members of the planning team and other band departments. These people could be students, teachers, school administrators, Elders, members of Band Council, or family heads.5,6

Your external group is made up of all people and groups you want to inform and engage in the planning process. This group can include members of the First Nation (on and off reserve), provincial and federal government agencies, neighbouring First Nations and municipalities, and other relevant interest groups.7

How is the Community Involved?

This question is best answered by you, since you are most familiar with the groups will be involved in the process. However, there are several key questions to ask yourself that can help you come to the answer. First, what level of participation do you want each group to achieve? Which method of participation will work for each group?

---

Tips to Get Started

1. “While one branch may be strong, many branches together are stronger.” A small committed group can make a much bigger impact and work more effectively together than any one person can alone.

2. Start with “small steps in the right direction” as opposed to planning for major progress all at once. This will help build trust and support in the community.

3. Expect resistance from the community, but do not be discouraged. People are resistant to change, and need time to accept new ideas. Keep moving forward with your committed group and, like pushing a snowball down a hill, momentum will build slowly with an initial push, but will grow on its own with time.”

---

Table 1

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Audience</th>
<th>The group or groups you want to share your message with</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Characteristics</td>
<td>current motivations • level of awareness • level of knowledge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Key Messages</td>
<td>what you want to change • what you want to audience to know • what perception you want to create • what action you want as a result</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Possible Issues</td>
<td>the main concerns of your audience • how they influence others</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Another way to think through community participation is with Table 2. This table is meant to help organize the process by assigning a leader and deadline to every task.

There are a variety of options to promote and conduct public participation. These range from in-person interviews to social media. Make sure each audience fully understands the issue being addressed and why it is important. They should also know why they are being contacted specifically, what it is they are expected to do, how to do it, and the details of where and when if necessary.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Who to share with</th>
<th>What to share</th>
<th>How to share</th>
<th>How often to share</th>
<th>Message</th>
<th>Content creator</th>
<th>Deadline</th>
<th>Status</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>On-reserve members</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Off-reserve members</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Youth</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elders</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Staff</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chief &amp; Council</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Other communities</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

When Should Community Participation be Promoted?

Depending on what you are working on, you will use different engagement tools at different times. As you work with your First Nation and associated groups, you will gain a better understanding of methods that work well in different situations. However, there are a few basic rules and questions to help you determine your timeline.

First, do not commit yourself too soon. There will be a minimum time for you and your planning team to prepare for the public engagement. Once this time frame is decided, it will be your minimum time to promote, communicate, and conduct long distance public participation. You will also need time to organize your planning team and develop content for the public participation, whether it is printed material, online material, or other. Again, this step will be determined by the resources available to you. Lastly, when are other community events and gatherings? These other events are great opportunities to spread the word of the project quickly and even to host a public engagement session.

Get in Touch With Your Audiences

- Local Radio Station
- Local TV Station
- Print: brochures, posters, letters, surveys, newsletters, reports
- Word of Mouth: home visits, open office hours, address at other community events, casual meetings
- Internet and Social Media: email, website, blog, online survey, Facebook, Twitter, Instagram

Further Reading

International Association for Public Participation (IAP2)

This organization provides resources and training for public participation leaders.

http://www.iap2.org/?page=foundations

The City of Edmonton's Bike Lane Projects is an example of an effective public participation process and has been included below for your reference. While it is a project in a big city, many of the methods used can be applied in a small community.

First Nations in BC Knowledge Network

This is a forum where First Nations can exchange information and learn from one another.

https://fnbc.info/org/comprehensive-community-planning-first-nations-british-columbia?page=1

Endnotes

4 Wendy Sarkissian, Andrea Cook, & Kevin Walsh, Community Participation in Practice: A Practical Guide (Murdoch, Australia: Institute for Science and Technology Policy, 1999).

7 CIER, 2008.

8 CIER, 2008.

10 Edwards & Reid, 2014.

11 CIER, 2008.

12 Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development, 2013.

